2. Reasons for the amendments

The full-year consolidated financial forecasts for FY2021 were amended from the previously announced forecasts mainly due to revisions to our annual sales plan and fluctuations in currency exchange rates.

The forecast of the full-year consolidated vehicle unit sales for FY2021 has been revised to 7,500 thousand units from 7,200 thousand units, which is 300 thousand units more than presumed at the time of the previous announcement of the FY2021 forecasts. Also, the forecast of the full-year retail unit sales for Toyota and Lexus brand vehicles for FY2021 has been revised to 8,600 thousand units from 8,300 thousand units, which is 300 thousand units more than presumed at the time of the previous announcement of the FY2021 forecasts. Regarding the pace of recovery of the retail unit sales for Toyota and Lexus brand vehicles in the future, we expect approximately 100% in the third quarter and approximately 105% in the fourth quarter, in comparison to the same periods in the previous fiscal year.

The assumption of the foreign exchange rate is 106 yen per U.S. dollar and 121 yen per euro for the full-year average.

The global spread of COVID-19 and the responses to it by governments and other stakeholders have adversely affected Toyota in a number of ways. For reasons such as government directives as well as anticipated reduced demand for its vehicles, Toyota has temporarily suspended, or intends to temporarily suspend, production of automobiles and components at selected plants in Japan and overseas. COVID-19 has also affected, and is expected to continue to affect, the businesses of Toyota dealers and distributors, as well as certain of Toyota's third-party suppliers and business partners. In addition, the global spread of COVID-19 and related matters have adversely affected businesses in a wide variety of industries, as well as consumers, all of which negatively impacted demand for Toyota's vehicles and related financial services.

The duration of the global spread of COVID-19 and the resulting future effects are uncertain, and the foregoing impacts and other effects not referenced above, as well as the ultimate impact of COVID-19, are difficult to predict and could have an adverse effect on Toyota's financial condition and results of operations.
