

Toyota Environmental Activities Grant Program Accepting 2020 Applications

Toyota City, Japan, April 1, 2020—Toyota Motor Corporation (Toyota) opened the application for this year's Toyota Environmental Activities Grant Program, which supports environmental kaizen and conservation activities contributing to the sustainable development.

The Toyota Environmental Activities Grant Program was introduced to commemorate Toyota winning the Global 500 Award in 1999 from the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP), and has carried it out every year since 2000, with this year marking the program's 21st year. The program aims to contribute to the resolution of environmental concerns and cultivate a new generation of leaders who will drive change on both a local and global basis. This year's theme will be "Biodiversity" and "Climate Change." Grants will be provided to NPOs and other non-profit organizations and groups (excluding schools) that are promoting practical projects and ESDs that correspond to the theme.

The program forms part of the Toyota Environmental Challenge 2050 (announced in 2015) of "Challenge 6: Challenge of Establishing a Future Society in Harmony with Nature," and we believe that it will also contribute to achieving the SDGs.

We provide grants to projects conducted solely by Japan-based groups or in collaboration between Japan-based groups and foreign-based groups. Activities conducted solely by foreign-based groups are not eligible for this grant. However, activities conducted in collaboration between foreign-based groups and overseas affiliates of Toyota Motor Corporation are eligible for this grant.
